THINKING OUT LOUD

By H. M. L.

While the charm and originality of the Cavalcade still lingers in the minds of Nevada County folks who saw the presentation of Earl Covey's long-time dream, Elmer Stevens' factual script writing and Theodore Matheson's expert direction, we wish again to call attention to some of Cavalcade's potentialties.

We think many organizations have much to contribute to future presentations of the Cavalcade which we hope can be expanded to include episodes of the entire county. Truckee, for instance, could contribute the Donner Party Episode. The Gold Trail Riders could provide horsemen for some of the mob scenes, the contribution of the Nevada County Historical Society could be of even greater importance than in those episodes already staged, the Native Sons and Daughters, who have attained a high reputation in recording of historical events, could make a very splendid contribution, and, we believe, many individual citnzens, whose ancestors were among the gold rush arrivals in California, could add their bit to the great pageant.

The movement to organize a Cavalcade Club, should succeed. Under its leadership we can hope for a great historical pageant presented annually during the Fourth Celebration. Such an event, from the standpoint of attracting people from all over California to visit Nevada County, probably could not be surpassed. And we wish to emphasize again the restrictions we believe should be placed on admissions. They should be small enough to bring in the largest possible audience.

The Fourth is an excellent day to present the Cavalcade because it is universally vacation time. As for a place to stage the show we still think a large natural amphitheater can be found, prefarably in Glenwood where the approximate center of the western Nevada County's population lies. Here is the point where the county chambers of commerce could help mightily by finding such a spot and arranging for its annual use.

We sincerely hope that come next Fourth of July we can carry out a double celebration by marching the parade through both cities. We can make the event just about twice as attractive if we really make it a twin community affair. And, with the Cavalcade, presented one or more times, we believe the two cities will become the Mecca for thousands who have never visited the county which has produced 25 per cent of California gold.

ASSESSMENT MUST RESUME ON MINE CLAIMS

WASHINGTON: Fred W. Johnson, director of the bureau of land management, today said many holders of United States mining claims have misinterpreted a congressional act in postponing assessment work on their holdings.

Johnson said public law 142 approved by congress June 30th merely suspended statutory requirements for all mining claims in Alaska until July 1st next year.

Holders of claims in the United States must perform a minimum of $100 worth of labor on the property within the next 12 months to retain ownership.

This is to prevent mine holders from retaining land year after year without developing it.

The requirement of annual assessment work, written into the 1872 mining laws was suspended during the 1894-95 depression, the Spanish American War in 1898, the World War from 1917 to 1921, and much of the time from 1932 onward during depression and war years. However, the requirement again became effective by presidential proclamation as of July 1st, this year—for all United States claims except those in Alaska.

WASHINGTON NOTES

FOREST SERVICE VS. CATTLEMEN

The forest service recently instituted suit to collect some $30,000 in damages from William C. McCulloch, Trinity County cattleman, resulting from a fire which it is claimed, was negligently started by one of his employees. This case has greatly exercised the people in the livestock business because it would establish a precedent of liability which no livestock man can very well afford to face. It is the first time the forest service has made an effort to collect from a property owner for a fire which he did not start or which was not started by an employee acting in the course of his employment. In this instance, the fire was allegedly started by the employee while smoking on the job, which was against the rules laid down by the employer. In other words, as a legal matter, the forest service is seeking to penalize the employer for an act by an employee which was for the latter's own pleasure.

When I heard of the case I got in tooch with Chief Watts of the forest service and told him that in my opinion launching upon this policy would do the forest service far more harm than good.

When District Attorney Regan of Trinity County who has been employed to defend the case, was here in Washington he and I went down and had a meeting with the chief forester together with his chief fire protection officer and legal counsel. Watts took the position that he had no discretion in the matter; that the records every year are audited by the comptroller general and if it appears that a claim exists in favor of the federal government the comptroller general insists that these claims be transferred to the justice department for collection. He did admit however, that a recommendation was made in connection with each case by the forest service which had a good deal of bearing. We suggested to him that it would be advisable in cases where negligence was sought to be imputed, as in the McCullough case, to recommend against a suit for collection of damages. Watts agreed to review the entire matter but suggested we take the subject up with the attorney gneral.

We met with reresentatives of the attroney general's office and they stated that if the forest service recommend that the suit be withdrawn then the attorney general's office wold have no objection.

This put the matter squarely up to the forest service. I have recently received another communication from Watts in which he states that after a full review of the matter it will be necessary for him to continue the suit. He claims that he has no right or power on the basis of policy to fail to prosecute an action where, under a strict interpretation of the law, the federal government might be entitled to recover damages for the cost of fire suppression.

Under the circumstances it appears that this case will have to be defended and defended very vigorously by the livestock operators. It is plain to see that if the entire lifetime investment of a stock operator can be thus jeopardized by an employee—while riding fences for instance and negligently throwing a cigaret away—the livestock oprators will face a hazard which can in many instances put them out of business. I think the forest service is extremely unwise and that the net effect of their action will be extreme reluctance on the part of jurors and for that matter, courts in the mountain areas of California to convict anybody of setting a fire if such conviction might expose the employer to the loss of his property.

Breakfast Cereals Bring Nutrition In Thrifty Form Throughout the Day

What's news? A thrifty food! What's even more newsworthy? A whole group of foods that's thrifty! And when that group comprises more than two dozen different varieties—it's what reporters call a "scoop" and menu makers call a "find."

Want directions for wending your way to these thrifty bargains in taste, texture and nutrition? Then follow your market basket to your nearest grocer and give a long look at the shelves that contain bright rows of thrifty cereal breakfast foods!

These are the good grain foods that can make breakfast an economy meal, that double as snacks, link with lunch bowls, and do dandy duty as dinner ingrdients. Make a note of this thrifty fact in your budget book: with minor exceptions a dish comosed of 1 ounce of cereal, 1-2 cup of milk and 1 teaspoon of sugar shows a cost of 3 to 5 cents!

Breakfast Cereals Are Clever "Carriers"

Not only do cereals have an important part to play for thier good grain self, but they act as "coaxers" to help folks eat other foods that they may not eat alone. For instance, a recent national survey showed that 41 per cent of the people seldom or never drink milk. Yet many folks find a bowl of cereal with milk for braekfast, luncheon or snack an agreeable way to include this important food in the diet. In 1945, over two billion quarts of milk were used just on cereals! The bowl of cereal thus becomes a very important way for many adults and children, too, to include milk in their meals

Besides the bowl of cereal, cereal "carries" milk to you in main-dishes and desserts where this good grain food is in ingredient.

PRACTICAL AIR GAUGE

The ear, if it is alert, is a good air gauge. When it detects a squeal from the tires when taking a corner at average speeds, the driver should regard it as his cue to have the tires inflated. Under-inflation, as a matter of fact, has reached the danger point when the tires begin to utter these cries of pain.

FACTS FOR SPEEDERS

An automobile traveling at 60 miles per hour strikes with the same impact as it would if driven off the top of a nine-story building. And an automobile traveling at this pace requires, under average braking and road conditions, a distance of 242 feet to come to a full stop. Drivers should think of these facts before they "step on the gas."

WASHINGTON NOTES

Bn Congressman Clair Engle

FOREST SERVICE VS. CATTLEMEN

The forest service recently instituted suit to collect some $30,000 in damages from William C. McCulloch, Trinity County cattleman, resulting from a fire which it is claimed, was negligently started by one of his employees. This case has greatly exercised the people in the livestock business because it would establish a precedent of liability which no livestock man can very well afford to face. It is the first time the forest service has made an effort to collect from a property owner for a fire which he did not start or which was not started by an employee acting in the course of his employment. In this instance, the fire was allegedly started by the employee while smoking on the job, which was against the rules laid down by the employer. In other words, as a legal matter, the forest service is seeking to penalize the employer for an act by an employee which was for the latter's own pleasure.

When I heard of the case I got in touch with Chief Watts of the forest service and told him that in my opinion launching upon this policy would do the forest service far more harm than good.

When District Attorney Regan of Trinity County who has been employed to defend the case, was here in Washington he and I went down and had a meeting with the chief forester together with his chief fire protection officer and legal counsel. Watts took the position that he had no discretion in the matter; that the records every year are audited by the comptroller general and if it appears that a claim exists in favor of the federal government the comptroller general insists that these claims be transferred to the justice department for collection. He did admit however, that a recommendation was made in connection with each case by the forest service which had a good deal of bearing. We suggested to him that it would be advisable in cases where negligence was sought to be imputed, as in the McCullough case, to recommend against a suit for collection of damages. Watts agreed to review the entire matter but suggested we take the subject up with the attorney gneral.

We met with rerepsentatives of the attroney general's office and they stated that if the forest service recommend that the suit be withdrawn then the attorney general's office wold have no objection.

This put the matter squarely up to the forest service. I have recently received another communication from Watts in which he states that after a full review of the matter it will be necessary for him to continue the suit. He claims that he has no right or power on the basis of policy to fail to prosecute an action where, under a strict interpretation of the law, the federal government might be entitled to recover damages for the cost of fire suppression.

Under the circumstances it appears that this case will have to be defended and defended very vigorously by the livestock operators. It is plain to see that if the entire lifetime investment of a stock operator can be thus jeopardized by an employee—while riding fences for instance and negligently throwing a cigaret away—the livestock oprators will face a hazard which can in many instances put them out of business. I think the forest service is extremely unwise and that the net effect of their action will be extreme reluctance on the part of jurors and for that matter, courts in the mountain areas of California to convict anybody of setting a fire if such conviction might expose the employer to the loss of his property.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Life, is the subject of the Christian Science Lesson Sermon for Sunday, July 20, with the golden text taken from Psalms: The Lord is the portion of mine inheritance and of my cup; thou maintainest my lot. Thou wilt shew me the path of life (16:5,11).

The following citations are included in the sermon:

John: And this is life eternal: that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent (17:3).

Science and Health with key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy: He who has the true idea of good loses all sense of evil, and by reason of this is being ushered into the undying realities of spirit. Such a one abideth in life—life obtained not of the body incapable of supporting life, but of truth, unfolding its own immortal idea. p 325.

Christian Science Society of Nevada City holds services every Sunday in the church, 114 Boulder Street at 11 o'clock. Sunday school at 9:45 a. m. A Wednesday evening testimonial meeting is held on the first Wednesday of each month at 8 o'clock. Our reading room is in the church. It is open Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, holidays excepted from 2 to 4 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend our services and visit the reading room.

NEW OVERHEAD

You can change the entire appearance of your rooms by redoing the ceilings. Cover them with a brightly patterened wallaper to contrast with the plain finished walls, or paint them a new deep color—blue or green—to give extra depth and richness to the room. Fluorescent lights concealed in the molding around the ceiling lend a new charm to everything in the room.

TRAPPED IN GARBAGE CAN

NEWTON, Miss.: When Johnnie Huntington, 6, got trapped in the family's sunken garbage can, it took the combined efforts of the neighbors, police and firemen, using an air drill, to extricate him.

STYLE CONSCIENCE

If your home is to be as beautiful as you like, stick to one style of architecture. Modify, rather than change, the style, and adapt it to today's living. But don't add features belonging to other styles.

Cook Vegetables or Fruits With Ham Slice for Variety

By BETSY NEWMAN

HAM is a general favorite among meats. I think I'm right in that surmise. One can do so many things with ham, either half a ham, a whole one or a slice or two.

In the recipes I'm giving today, a slice is served with vegetables or fruit to vary our usual ways of cooking it.

Today's Menu

Spiced Ham Slice with Glazed Carrots
Ham with Bananas or Ham Slice with Sweet Potatoes
Mixed Raw Vegetable Salad
Rhubarb Pie Coffee

Spiced Ham Slice with Glazed Carrots

1 center ham slice cut ¾ inch thick
½ c. sugar
¼ tsp. cinnamon
⅛ tsp. ginger
⅛ tsp. nutmeg
½ c. vinegar
½ c. water
6 to 8 carrots

Brown ham on both sides in frying pan or baking pan. Combine spices, sugar, vinegar and water, and pour over ham, cover and cook on top of stove over low heat, or bake in a moderate oven (350 F.) until meat is tender, from 45 to 60 min.

About 20 minutes before ham is done, surround with carrots which have been scraped and parboiled. Continue cooking or baking, turning carrots to glaze on all sides.

In serving, place ham on platter surrounded by carrots, and garnish it, if you like, with sprigs of watercress or parsley. Serves 4 to 6.

Ham with Bananas

1 center slice of ham
1 tsp. prepared mustard
3 tbsp. light brown sugar
1 tbsp. vinegar
½ c. boiling water
1 tbsp. lemon juice
2 bananas
Additional brown sugar

Grease baking pan, heat, put in ham and brown on both sides. Rub top with prepared mustard (you can use dry mustard mixed to a paste with a little water, if you prefer), sprinkle with brown sugar; add water, vinegar and lemon juice. Cook in slow oven (325 F.), about 20 minutes, then over the top place bananas cut in halves lengthwise and again crosswise. Sprinkle additional brown sugar over bananas, baste with liquid in pan and return to the oven to bake until bananas are heated through and ham is tender, 15 to 20 minutes longer. Serves 4 to 6.

Ham Slice with Sweet Potatoes

4 sweet potatoes
⅓ c. brown sugar
2 tbsp. butter or fortified margarine
1 center slice ham

Peel sweet potatoes and slice; put in greased baking dish in layers, sprinkling each layer with brown sugar and dotting with butter or margarine. Brown ham slice in skillet and place over sweet potatoes. Rinse frying pan with one-fourth cup of water, pour into pan or casserole, and bake in a slow oven (325 F.) until ham and potatoes are tender, about one hour. To make serving easy, it is a good plan to cut the ham slice into serving pieces before putting on the potatoes. Serves 4 to 6.

A Man Whose Name Was Job — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Job 1:1-5; 27:1-7; 29-31.

By Alfred J. Buescher

"There was a man in the land of Uz, whose name was Job; and that man was perfect and upright, and one that feared God and eschewed evil." The word "Uz" means "a light, sandy soil."

Job was a rich man, owning many sheep, camels and oxen, and a very great household. He had seven sons and three daughters and was a very great man.

But the Lord allowed Satan to take away his riches and afflicted him with boils to test his loyalty to his God, but Job stood the test, keeping his faith and loyalty to Jehovah.

Job's friends came to comfort him in his misery, and he told them, "My righteousness I hold fast and will not let it go."

MEMORY VERSE—Psalms 84:5.

THE - Diary of a 49'er

FROM THE BOOK EDITED BY C. L. CANFIELD

CHAPTER ONE (Continued)

MAY 26, 1850—Rocked sixty buckets each day during the week and got seven and a half ounces. Only worked half a day Saturday. Did not go to town. Sent over by Jim Early for some tobacco—five plugs for two dollars. Went hunting this morning; killed seventeen quail and four pigeons. They make a good stew if the rotten pork didn't spoil it, but it's better than the bull beef the butcher packs around. Took a snooze in the afternoon till the squawking of the blue jays woke me up. I don't mind them so much but when the doves begin to mourn it seems as if I couldn't stand it. I get to thinking of dear old mother and dad and the old place, and wondering what they were all doing. I know. They went to church this morning, and then set around and did nothing until chore time. I'll bet they didn't forget me.

I hear there are three women over on Selby Flat. Selby's brother, keeping a boarding house and a grass-widow from Missouri, a skittish old woman who is looking for another husband. The camp has more people than the settlement at Caldwell's Store on Deer Creek.*

What we miss more than anything else is that there are no women in the country, or comparatively few. Barring out the greasers and the squaws, I don't suppose there are twenty in all of Yuba County, outside of Marysville, with few exceptions they are of no particular credit to their sex. To one who was born and brought up where there were more women than men, it is hard to realize what a hardship it is to be deprived of their company. To hear some of the miners talk—the married ones—you would think their wives were angels, and maybe they were, but I guess it is because they are so far away. Still, when I recall Hetty North, it seems as if she was the dearest girl in the world and although we used to have lots of tiffs and quarrels and broke off our engagement a dozen times I don't believe we would have a cross word if she were here with me now.

*The camp at Caldwell's Store grew into the present Nevada City.

JUNE 2, 1850—Claim paying pretty well. Washed out over five ounces besides two nuggets, one nine and one eleven dollars. Could do better if the water did not bother so much. Got two long letters from home. Thank God, they are all well or were a month ago. Dad got the two hundred I sent him, says I musn't stint myself to send money home. The neighbors think I am making a big fortune and many of the boys are planning to come to California this summer. Henry North has sold a yoke of oxen and his three year old colt and starts this month. I like Henry but I care more for his sister Hetty. I wonder if she will wait as she promised until I get back. Baked enough bread to last until Saturday. Anderson spent the evening at the cabin. He is crazy on river mining. He and friends have located claims on the Yuba and are going to turn the river when the water runs low. He is certain if he can get down on bedrock he will take out gold by the bucketful. Wants me to join the company.

JUNE 9, 1850—Went into town yesterday afternoon. With last week's washings I had eighteen ounces besides the nuggets. Spent twenty seven dollars at the store and deposited $200. Had two bully meals at the hotel; first pie I had eaten since I got here. The town is full of drunken miners. Have kept my promise to mother and have not touched a drop since I started. Went into the Bella Union gambling saloon. The place was full and running over with gamblers and miners and the latter seemed to be trying to get rid of their money as fast as possible. At some of the tables they were playing for high stakes as much as one hundred dollars on the turn of a card. Monte was the most popular game and while I was there "Texas Bill" tapped one of the banks for two thousand dollars and won on the first pull. Then he took the dealers seat and the banker quit until he could raise another stake.

There was a young French woman dealing twenty-one. She was as pretty as a picture. Began betting just to get near her and hear her talk. I lost seventy dollars and she did not notice me any more than she did the rest of the crowd. What would Hetty say if she knew I gambled? Four days' hard work gone for nothing!

Veterans' News

Veterans Administration is urging all veterans of World War II to give serious consideration to the peace time protection provided them and their families by liberalized national service life insurance.

Veterans who have allowed their GI term insurance to lapse have until January 1, 1948 to reinstate their lapsed GI term insurance with a simple "comparative health statement."

The statement to the effect that the veteran's health is as good as when he allowed the policy to lapse plus two monthly premiums, is all that is needed to reinstate the insurance.

National Service Life Insurance, liberalized by congress to meet the peace time needs of the veterans, now includes:

1 Unrestricted choice of one or more beneficiaries.

2 Lump sum settlement or choice of three monthly installment options.

3 Three endowment plans payable to th veteran at maturity, making six permanent plans in all.

4 Total disability income benefits for an additional premium.

5 Right to purchase insurance after discharge under certain conditions.

These new and liberalized features make National Service Life Insurance comparable, and in many ways superior, to any type policy written in the world today.

In addition there are no restrictions as to travel, residence or occupation. Premiums for NSLI are lower than any other type insurance because the government pays the cost of administration.

The privilege of owning National Service Life Insurance is restricted to veterans of World War II—it is a benefit granted them by a grateful government.

Q: In getting a guaranteed loan under the GI Bill, must my loan be secured by a lien?

A: Not invariably. Under most circumstances a lien will be required as security for a loan but there are a few conditions under which a loan may be unsecured.

Q: Do the veteran's rights to a loan guarantee extend indefinitely?

A: No. A guaranty may be had if applied for within 10 years from the termination of World War II which has not been declared yet.

Who Owns Business?

"Who owns American corporations?" That was the lead sentence of an Associated Press story released the other day. Point of this story was that the people own business. Stockholders of five big companies in representative fields added together number 1,684,868, or enough people to make the fourth largest city of the United States. That is correct, the people do own our corporations. It is right for people to own our business.

I have often contended that in America you have the people owning the wealth and resources of a nation in much more direct and complete manner than you could ever have under any of the socialistic dream Utopias. This is the straight answer to the Communistic dodge that the people are the state to which must be added the fact that in totalitarian countries the state owns the people. In America the people, in a very real way, own the wealth and resources of the nation.

"Vested" Interests

If you were to combine the population of Nevada, Wyoming and Delaware, according to the Associated Press story, you would still not have as many people as own the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. A city composed of the 700,000 A.T.&T. stockholders would be the tenth largest in the country. Moreover, it is significant that this corporation's stockholders far outrank in number its 500,000 workers.

This is generally true of American corporations, and when you add the stockholders to the employees, you strengthen your picture of America as a place where the masses have "vested" interests in the wealth of the nation. The stockholders of the richest railroad in the land, the Pennsylvania, outnumber the employees almost four to three. They live in every state of the union, and on the average own 60 shares representing an individual investment of $1,200.

We're All Dependent

We think of General Motors, biggest automobile manufacturers, as having a lot of employees. Yet, except for a brief period at the peak of armament work during the war, General Motors stockholders have outnumbered employees for 17 years. More than a third of General Motors individual stockholders have holdings of 10 shares or fewer. No single person owns more than 1.5 per cent of all General Motors stock.

While it is remembered that sometimes large blocks of stock will be owned by other companies, it must be kept in mind that these companies in turn have many stockholders. Notable also is the fact that many educational, charitable, and religious institutions, as well as non-profit associations and foundations, are on the rolls of "big" business. No one knows just how many persons may be dependent upon the successful operations of our corporations. In the truest sense, all of us are, either directly or indirectly.

Most of the nation's wealth has its source in the enterprise of a carefully conducted business. Natural resources must first feel the hands of men at machines. I cannot imagine why any free American would wish to trade what we have in this country for any part of the vague economic systems that have produced only failure. Not only have these other systems failed to produce real blessings for their people in the form of higher living standards, but they have brought slavery instead of economic freedom.

Doctors of old prescribed walnuts for brain troubles, because the shells are shaped like human skulls and the meats like brains.

Uncle Sam Says

You, too, can be a harvester—and not once or twice a year but every month. What farmer—even the wheat men and women of Kansas and the Dakotas who at this moment are reaping the greatest harvest in history—would not prize a harvest every month. The harvest-a-month plan has popular name—the Bond-a-Month Plan. Begin today sowing financial seeds. For every $18.75 you plant during a month in the form of a United States Savings Bond $25 will sprout 10 years later. U. S. Treasury Department

NEVADA CITY COUNCIL

BROAD STREET

By Harley M. Leete, Jr.

Nobody else has reported flying diss in Nevada City, so this writer feels that he can no longer deprive Gentle Reader from knowing of astounding occurrence on Nihell Street at 5 p. m. Sunday morning.

Your reporter was awakened by a disturbance among the neighborhood grey squirrels. They were excitedly chattering in the tree tops, gesticulating and pointing to a large, spherical object that was floating down right in his own backyard.

It was silver on top and gray on the bottom, shaped somewhat like a discus (as a matter of fact, it looked a bit like a saucer). A small propeller spun at the top and flashes of blue flame shot out in a pinwheel pattern.

Excited? Of course not. Well, your reporter did take to or three photographs before he remembered there was no film in his camera. But aside from the fact that he put his shoes on he wrong feet as he rushed outside, he was cool as a cucumber.

The flying saucer was just settling to the earth near the barbecue pit as he hurried up. The propeller whirred to a stop and the blue flames stopped shooting out the exhaust. It was six feet in diameter and 18 inches thick.

The brass plate bolted to the side of the disc said: "War Department. Top Secret. Anyone discovering this is to report by telephone at once to Commanding General, Secret Operations, Pentagon Building, Washington, D. C. Anyone otherwise divulging information pertaining to this weapon will be prosecuted under Public Law No. 6xB189. Contents non-explosive. Do not open."

It didn't take a minute to steal a set of tools from a neighbor's car. No one was around at that hour. And as soon as your reporter got the knack of the hatch sealing system, had the gadget open like an oyster in a thrice.

Inside was a complete radar set, an 19-tube radio, a fixed focus movie camera, a nautical chronometer, and a mass of complicated controls operated by a radio receiver, and a sealed lead casket. The box, labeled double-top secret, soon yielded to the borrowed tools, and your reporter discovered a thick envelope sealed with red wax.

Tearing the envelope apart, he found four sheets of newsprint copy paper. Gasping with suppressed excitement your scribe read the first line. Here's what it said. "Nobody eslse has reprted flying discs in Nevada City so your reporter . . .'.

All handwritten or typewritten material sealed against postal inspection, is considered first class mail.

DOG-FISHING

SANTE FE, N. M.: While fishing along the Rio Grande, the small Sealyham belonging to Jennings Doakes gave battle to a larger dog and the fight ended in the middle of the river. The little dog, exhausted, sank. Doakes made several casts, hooked the unconscious pup and reeled him in. He was revived by artificial respiration.

Words of the Wise

No one has insight into all the ideals . . . The pretension to dogmatize about them in each other is the root of most human injustices and cruelties, and the trait in human character most likely to make the angels weep.
